

Linux Version of MotiveWave Trading Platform Now Available

MotiveWave Software has expanded its supported operating systems to now include a Linux version, making the MotiveWave trading platform now available for Windows, macOS and Linux.

Kelowna, BC - January 31, 2020 - MotiveWave Software, a Kelowna-based developer of easy-to-use high-performance charting and trading software, is happy to announce the release of a Linux version of its full-featured professional charting and trading platform.

"A Linux version has been a growing request in our user community for the past couple of years and we are excited to announce that a MotiveWave Linux version is now available", said Tony Lindsay, Founder of MotiveWave Software, "There aren't a lot of options when it comes to trading platforms on Linux, and we believe that MotiveWave's Linux version will make our current users, as well as a lot of other traders very happy."

The Linux version of the MotiveWave trading platform, released January 30, 2020 on version 6.1.6 of MotiveWave, uses the Debian package format and has been tested on:

- Ubuntu - 18.04 and 19.10
- Mint - 19.3
- Kubuntu - 19.10

The Linux version of MotiveWave is available to download from the MotiveWave Download Page.

MotiveWave is an advanced full-featured professional trading platform available for Windows, macOS, and now Linux. MotiveWave is available in 5 different editions, designed to meet individual trading needs, experience and budget.

MotiveWave can be used to trade any securities that your broker or data service supports. These may include stocks, futures, options, equities, cryptocurrencies and Forex.
